State of South Dakota

Office Of The Governor

WHEREAS, David Mossner has suffered the trials and tribulations of news reporting at the State Capital of South Dakota; and,

WHEREAS, David got a brief initiation under the direction of Governor William Jarklow and lived to tell about it; and,

WHEREAS, David learned early in the Mickelson administration that a reporter and his camera should never be parted; and,

WHEREAS, Dave has put up with editors in the hinterlands of Sioux Falls who know little or nothing about state government reporting and have probably made his life miserable because they don't understand the life of a reporter in a capital city; and,

WHEREAS, David has always acted professionally and courteously, even to politicians and their staff; and,

WHEREAS, Dave has landed a new position with WISC-TV and will soon be moving to Janesville, Wisconsin; and,

WHEREAS, Wisconsin's got nothing on South Dakota except Dave Mossner; and,

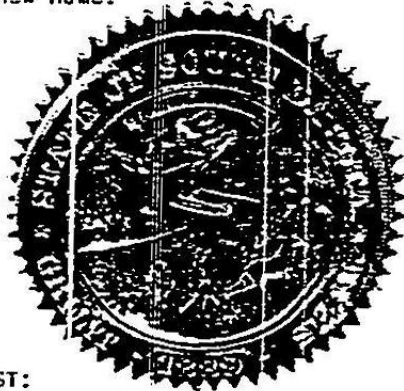

WHEREAS, Dave has been an asset to his church and community and will be missed when he leaves Pierre; and,

WHEREAS, Dave has a wonderful family including his wife, Rhonda, and son, Matthew;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, GEORGE S. MICKELSON, Governor of the State of South Dakota, do hereby proclaim Tuesday, July 25, 1989, as
